- d) demonstrates that Council will deal with all matters in an impartial, open and accountable manner.

3 SCOPE

This policy applies for all aldermen and employees of Burnie City Council. Where specific provisions apply to aldermen only, these are clarified in each section.

Aldermen	Covered by Part 5A Local Government Act and Part 3A Local Government (General) Regulations 2015; and the Aldermen's Code of Conduct

4.2 Gifts and Benefits

Gifts and benefits are those items offered or given to individuals or a group as a token of appreciation and gratitude for services or tasks performed.

Regulation 29A of the Local Government (General) Regulations 2015 lists prescribed classes of gifts and benefits that apply to Aldermen:

Aldermen	For the purposes of section 56A(1)(b) of the Act, the following classes of gift or donation are prescribed: (a) an item, service, loan of money, loan of property or any other benefit with a monetary value of $50 or more; (b) an item, service or other benefit that is part of a series of gifts or donations received by a councillor from the same donor, where the aggregate monetary value of the series of gifts or donations in a financial year is $50 or more.
Employees	Gifts or donations are those items offered or given to individuals or a group as a token of appreciation and gratitude for services or tasks performed

The receipt of a gift or benefit may be perceived as creating influence or obligation, therefore to manage this perception, a clear framework is provided:

- a) One-off gifts and benefits of token or nominal value may be accepted without declaration;
- b) Gifts and benefits that are greater than a token or nominal value must be declared to the General Manager who then has discretion to allow the gift to be passed on to the intended recipient(s) or rejected. All notifications will be recorded in the Gifts and Benefits Register.

Gifts and benefits are not to be solicited by aldermen or employees under any circumstances.

An alderman or employee must not accept any gift or benefit if:

- a) the person offering it, or a fair person, would expect them to be influenced in the way they do your job or carry out their duties, and/or
- b) they would feel a sense of obligation or debt to the person offering the gift or benefit, and/or
- c) they or the Council are likely to be compromised.

An alderman or employee must never accept an offer of money, regardless of the amount.

Aldermen and employees must take all reasonable steps to ensure that immediate family members do not receive gifts or benefits of a non-token nature or gifts or benefits above the nominal value as a result of the alderman or employee's position. Immediate family members include parents, spouse, children and siblings.

4.3 What is Token or Nominal Value?

Token or nominal gifts and benefits are defined as non-monetary gifts and benefits up to the value of $50 (fifty dollars) that do not occur on a regular basis.

Gifts and benefits of a token or nominal value usually do not create a sense of obligation in the receiver that will influence, or appear to influence, the exercise of his or her official duties.

For the purposes of this policy, token or nominal gifts and benefits are defined as non-monetary gifts and benefits up to the value of $50 (fifty dollars) that do not occur on a regular basis.

Examples of token gifts and benefits include:

- a) single bottles of reasonably priced alcohol to individuals at end of year functions, public occasions or in recognition of work done;
- b) meals of a modest nature and/or beverages provided infrequently (and/or reciprocally) that have been arranged primarily for, or in connection with, the discussion of official business;
- c) meals of a modest nature and/or beverages provided to Council officials who formally represent their Council at work related events such as training, education sessions, workshops etc or provided at conferences where they are a speaker;
- d) chocolates, flowers in recognition of work done;
- e) marketing trinkets or corporate mementos (such as key rings, notepads, pens and pencils) and ties, scarves, coasters, tie pins, diaries, chocolates, flowers and small amounts of beverage;
- f) books given to individuals at functions, public occasions, or in recognition of work done;
- g) invitations as a representative of Council to cocktail parties, Christmas parties, civic or social functions.

Examples of gifts and benefits that are not token in nature include free or discounted travel, use of holiday homes, tickets to major sporting events, corporate hospitality at a corporate facility or sporting venue, free training excursions, access to confidential information, discounted products for personal use.

4.4 What to do if you are offered a gift or benefit

An alderman or employee who is offered or receives a gift or benefit that is more than token or nominal value, should take the following steps:

- a) Consider the option to politely decline the gift. In some cases this may be the appropriate option.
- b) Report the offer of the gift to the relevant Director or General Manager (even if the gift was declined).

If an alderman or employee is in doubt about whether a gift is token or nominal in value, they should exercise caution and declare the gift.

Should any gift or benefit be received and the alderman or employee fails to provide information in accordance with this policy, the following action may result:

Aldermen	Penalties may apply under s56A of the Local Government Act 1993.
Employees	Disciplinary action may be taken.

4.5 Disposal of Gifts

The General Manager, Mayor or Deputy Mayor will determine whether a gift of benefit of a non-token nature should be disposed. Options for disposal include:

- Surrendering the gift to Council for retention
- Distributing the gift or benefit amongst a selection of Council staff – where a reasonable person would agree that the allocation was appropriate
- Donating the gift to an appropriate charity.

4.6 Bribes and Inducements

Bribery is defined as inducement by offering any undue reward by, or to, any person in public office in order to influence his or her behaviour in that office, and to incline that person to act contrary to the known rules of honesty and integrity.

Acceptance of a bribe creates an assumption that the recipient has undertaken to provide preferential service or outcomes and places that person in a compromised position, being liable to the influence of the person who has given the bribe or inducement.
